

'A Time To Weep, And A Time To Laugh'

Next week 226 Seniors will graduate from Terra Nova High School and make their various ways into the world. For them it will be an end and a beginning. It will be a time of mixed emotions--of laughter and tears, of trepidation and eagerness, of anxiety and relief. For those young people it will mean an end to a four-year way of life that has become a very real and important part of them. It will mean a beginning of a new life as adults in a world of immeasurable opportunities. They will plunge into a fast-moving, ever-shrinking world of dynamic dimensions; a world where people have the power to discover and overcome exciting new frontiers--and a world where they have the power to send everything on the face of the earth spinning into oblivion.

They will be up against odds they have never before experienced. There will be stumbling-blocks and there will be stepping stones...successes and failures. There will be times of hardship and times of prosperity. There will be "a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace."

The Seniors graduating next week have opportunities that their parents and grandparents never dreamed possible. One of those graduates may be the first person on the moon. One of them may find the cure for cancer or heart disease.

The Seniors who walk out from these doors next week, as well as the Seniors all over the country, will someday hold the fate of the world in their hands. Let us hope and pray that they will have the strength, courage, and wisdom to make the right decisions so that someday we may see the dawn of a new era of peace among mankind.

From Followers to Leaders:

Class of '66

by Andrea Drake

It's hard to believe that in just a few short days the Class of '66 will be the Senior Class. It seems like just a few days ago when we first came to TN, a little nervous, and a little scared, but still confident that we were going to have a great time in high school.

Of course we had received the usual warning from upper-classesmen to watch out for the sophomores, but we didn't believe them, and then after the first few days we found that the sophomores were almost human. In fact, they were pretty good kids, except when we tried to compete with them.

In that first year the Class of '65 seemed to be years ahead of us, especially in spirit, of which we had none. They had a lot, lot more than we did, more than is usually gained by one year of experience.

It seemed that we were never able to top the Class of '65 in anything. Of little when, in our Sophomore year, they not only had more spirit than we did, but also more than the Seniors.

Then, in our Junior year we emerged as the senior leading competitor, and this time it was more of an even match. The Seniors were surprised at our new spirit and drive, but apparently they weren't surprised enough, because they took Spirit Week for the second time in as many years.

Now that we're faced with the loss of our greatest enemy we realize that it will be a sad moment when the Seniors graduate.

Throughout our years at TN we've always had the older, more experienced class of '65 ahead of us to take the lead in nearly everything. Now the thought that WE'RE going to be the leaders of the school is a little bit frightening. But we are confident that we can handle this new challenge by following the example of the Class of '65.

Most Memorable Moments

by Ray Baxter

(As the Seniors await Graduation Day, their minds are filled with many fond, and not so-fond memories of their high school days. Here are the most memorable moments of some of the Senior Class of 1965.)

Tony Salvemini: The day I broke my leg.

Betty DeJarnatt: I guess the first track meet I went to.

Andy Fenves: The Senior Ball.

Susan Schumacher: My most memorable moment was the series of hours when I worked on the Senior Play.

Ken Shoemaker: It hasn't come yet. I guess it will be Graduation.

Bob English: The Senior Ball.

Barbara Lins: When the Junior Class won the Cheer Jug Award last year.

Carl Duncan: There ain't no outstanding thing. Getting out, I guess. I'm going into the army to get out of Terra Nova and to try to forget Terra Nova.

Ken Winkler: The Senior Ball.

Gail Ackerman: The first day that I came to Terra Nova it was during Spirit Week, in my sophomore year. The day was Crazy Day but at the time I did not know what was going on. This is the thing I will remember most.

Roger Bronfield: Graduation Day.

Regina Greene: I guess the Senior Ball.

Nels Estund: June 18th.

Kathy Frank: The Senior Ball.

Dave Walker: When Bill McWilliams sang last year.

Claude Halcomb: When the Student Echo came out.

Connie Brozicovic: When, on my first day at TN last year, I found the students to be so friendly and willing to help me.

Mark Stephens: Opening night of the Senior Play, when I couldn't swallow the cake.

Marilyn Gottlieb: My senior year in general, and the Senior Ball, in particular.

Poll Queen

By Sue Schumacher

A fanfare of trumpets-- it's Jeannie Rogers again. She's been chosen Student of the Year by a poll of the teachers. The teachers voted each month for Student of the month and Jeannie received the highest total throughout the year. She also was chosen Ideal Senior Girl by the boys of the Senior class.

When this reporter interviewed Jeannie she was just back from the FEBA convention to Disneyland, where she was the Northern California candidate for Miss FEBA and suffering from a cold. She brightened up when told she had been chosen for both these honors.

Speaking in her capacity as Senior class president, she said, "This was the most beautiful year of my life. The class was better than ever with more people helping make it more rewarding than ever."

Besides being class president for the entire year, Jeannie was a pom-pom girl and finalist for the American Field Service exchange student program, to mention just a few of her accomplishments.

KATHI'S KAMPUS KLOSET

by Kathi Grigg

As the school year of 1964-65 is coming to its close, I would first like to wish the class of '65 the very best of luck and success in their following years ahead.

Since the excitement of the Senior Picnic and Reception has ended, the focus is now on Graduation and the All-Night Party. When picking out your dress for the night of graduation and the party, remember that the robes aren't as full as many of you might desire for your outfit hidden beneath, so try to choose something straight or semi-full. From the comments that I have heard, the dress this year is going to be from fancy to very casual. Your hair-do is also a very important factor for that very special night. Caps must be worn, so hair-dos will not be as high fashioned as many of you may want; hairstyles will be quite casual and easy to manage.

After graduation is over and you are out to face the world as an individual, the problem of what to wear on a job interview might arise. Suits and tailored dresses are always a welcome sight for any employer to see. Gloves and a hat will make you look very appropriate. Black nylons are strictly forbidden. When choosing your outfit always remember that no matter what the occasion there should not be any more than three accessories of the same color. The first thing an employer looks for in his employees is their taste in dress.
